LAST WEEK

Toastmaster Jack Packey demonstrated that his many years of practice made him able to put his audience at ease (without putting it to sleep). The rulers of the inanimate world turns out to be available of your nearest hardware and is none other than duct tape.

IT LOOKS LIKE VICTORY

Yr. Ed., a few days ago, was at a Temple City florist, ordering flowers for one of his nieces, who died after battling the big C for 14 years. A woman ahead of me paid with a "military" wife card and the florist said "I bet you hate those protesters." Silence. Having studied international law, sometimes at govt. expense, the law is that only self-defense would validate a pre-emptive war. Once a war is on we want the home team to win, and as quickly as possible. As we write this, it is fair to say, America rejoices in what appears to be, a big victory. As is the case in most wars, God Almighty is cast as a co-sponsor. That part is, in the modern lingo, problematic.

SEE YOU TUESDAY,
