"THE CAMELLIA CLUB"
TEMPLE CITY CALIFORNIA
Chartered August 8, 1939

JUNE 12, 2007 TUESDAY 12:15 P.M. VOL. 70 NO. 24

THIS TUESDAY

He is our newest citizen, our interclub chairman, now he is our program chairman for June. Jim says we might possibly have a program presented by a doctor at Arcadia Methodist Hospital. He/she will be speaking about the early detection and prevention of colon cancer.

LAST TUESDAY

Retired Camellia Festival director, Marie Corrigan gave us a brief history of her 32 year involvement with the festival. It all began when then city manager, Karl Koskie (Rotarian) asked Marie to be the secretary of the festival. She was working with the likes of Chet Otting, Harlos Gross, and Al Millham. Our own member, Chuck Souder who is the treasurer of the Festival gave us the financial end of putting on such a large event. The Festival has not always made money.

Mike Lepore's daughter was a Princess in 1970, and his grandson was a theme winner. The theme has been chosen for 2008 and its "Childhood Fantasies". Contrary to popular belief, the theme was chosen by a 3rd grader at Longden, and not by Mr. Happy #1.

Guest's in attendance were Elmer Black's daughter Janet, and Jim Robuck's sister Sue from New Mexico. Sue gave a wonderful glimpse of life in New Mexico.

D-DAY

Since your editor was born 2 months before D-Day, I thought it would be appropriate to give you a little history. Those of you that are tired of Lindsay Lohan, Paris Hilton, and Phil Spector, listen up!

D-Day is a term often used in military parlance to denote the day on which a combat attack or operation is to be initiated. "D-Day" often represents a variable, designating the day upon which some significant event will occur or has occurred; see Military designation of days and hours for similar terms. The initial D in D-Day has had various meanings in the past, while more recently it has obtained the connotation of "Day" itself, thereby creating the phrase "Day-Day."

By far, the best known D-Day is June 6, 1944 — the day on which the Battle of Normandy began — commencing the Western Allied effort to liberate mainland Europe from Nazi occupation during World War II. However, many other invasions and operations had a designated D-Day, both before and after Operation Overlord. The invasion of France was originally planned for June 5, 1944 but bad weather and heavy seas delayed that.

The terms D-Day and H-Hour are used for the day and hour on which a combat attack or operation is to be initiated. They designate the day and hour of the operation when the day and hour have not yet been determined, or where secrecy is essential. There is but one D-Day and one H-Hour for all units participating in a given operation.

When used in combination with figures, and plus or minus signs, these terms indicate the point of time preceding or following a specific action. Thus, H-3 means 3 hours before H-Hour, and D+3 means 3 days after D-Day. H+75 minutes means H-Hour plus 1 hour and 15 minutes. Planning papers for large-scale operations are made up in detail long before specific dates are set. Thus, orders are issued for the various steps to be carried out on the D-Day or H-Hour minus or plus a certain number of days, hours, or minutes. At the appropriate time, a subsequent order is issued that states the actual day and times.

The earliest use of these terms by the U.S. Army that the Center of Military History has been able to find was during World War I. In Field Order Number 9, First Army, American Expeditionary Forces, dated 7 September 1918: "The First Army will attack at H hour on D day with the object of forcing the evacuation of the St. Mihiel Salient."

D-Day for the invasion of Normandy by the Allies was originally set for 5 June 1944, but bad weather caused Gen. Dwight. D Eisenhower to delay until 6 June and that date has been popularly referred to ever since by the short title "D-Day". (In French, it is called Le Jour J or, occasionally, Le Choc.) Because of this, planners of later military operations sometimes avoided the term. For example, Douglas MacArthur's invasion of Leyte began on "A-Day", and the invasion of Okinawa began on "L-Day". The Allies proposed invasions of Japan that would have begun on "X-Day" (Kyūshū, scheduled for November 1945) and "Y-Day" (Honshū, scheduled for March 1946).
