JULY 5, 2011 TUESDAY 12:00 P.M. VOL. 72 NO. 39

THIS TUESDAY

John Chandler is our program chairman for July. Since I like anybody with the name Jerry, Jerry Selmer will talk about the Southwest Museum. How many remember visiting the Museum during your elementary school years?

LAST TUESDAY

Lynn Rabin is a teacher by training and career. She spent the bulk of her professional life teaching in public high schools and continuation schools, and she also worked eight years in the private sector. Lynn hold a B.A. from UCLA and an M.A. from CSULA. When she retired, she started Senior to Senior as a way to help fill in the technology gap for the senior community.

We are living in what is being called the Information Age, Digital Age or the Digital Revolution. Through the world wide web (www), born in 1989 (maybe by Al Gore), we now have instant access to a knowledge base that was previously difficult, if not impossible to find.

This so-called revolution happened to have by-passed a large number of seniors. Senior to Senior provides individualized computer instruction in their own homes, independent living centers, and in assisted living environments. Instruction is specifically tailored to the client's skill level, knowledge, needs, and interest. The hourly rate for all this help is $60 per hour, or you can get a few 3rd graders at La Rosa to help for a trip to McDonalds. All else fails, ask your grandchildren.

Ed Chen from Athens Services visited again and was recommended to the education committee. Dan and June Snell celebrated 67 years of marriage on June 22nd. Dan and June's granddaughter Joi Copeland wrote a book entitled "What Tomorrow Brings" which can be found at Border's Bookstore. Jerry and Mary Backstrom celebrated their anniversary on June 28th. John and Barbara Gera celebrated their 50th on July 1st. Steve Montesanti led a group to Alhambra for an Interclub, they included Mike Lepore, Dan Snell, and Fernando Vizcarra who is vacationing in Italy.

We were visited by 3 active Key Clubbers at our meeting. Jonathan Luu, Vice President; Stella Yuan, President; and Vivian Wong, Secretary.
